Social Side of Washington

Washington, May 20.—The third in the series of White House garden parties and the Brooks-Cromwell wedding were like beacons in society's way at the capital this week. Each was perfect of its kind, despite the absence of the President's daughter, who was expected to be the guest par excellence at the latter, and Mrs. Taft's limbility to receive at the fete she had planned with infinite pleasure and pains. Her place as hostess was most estisfactorily filled by Miss Taft, as elisted by the President's sister, Mrs. William A. Edwards, of Los Angeles who happily arrived on Wedness; with the husband, Dr. Edwards, for a visit at the White House—the first will be since her brother's manural the long office of Chief Executive in unexpected and pleasant opportunity to renew the acquaintance of Mas.
